Pensionomics 2014:

Measuring the Economic Impact of DB Pension Expenditures

Key Findings

Benefits paid by state and local pension plans support a significant amount of economic activity in the state of Delaware.

Pension benefits received by retirees are spent in the local community. This spending ripples through the economy, as one person's spending becomes another person's income, creating a multiplier effect.

In 2012, expenditures stemming from state and local pensions supported...

- 7,834 jobs that paid $381.1 million in wages and salaries
- $1.3 billion in total economic output
- $161.2 million in federal, state, and local tax revenues

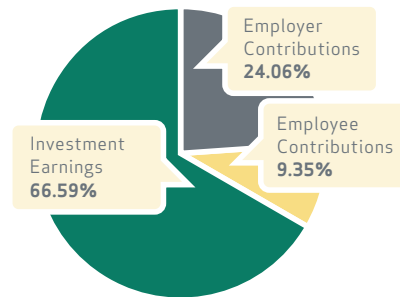

... in the state of Delaware.

Each dollar paid out in pension benefits supported $1.73 in total economic activity in Delaware.

Each dollar "invested" by Delaware taxpayers in these plans supported $7.19 in total economic activity in the state.

Overview

Expenditures made by retirees of state and local government provide a steady economic contribution to Delaware communities and the state economy. In 2012, 31,871 residents of Delaware received a total of $632.4 million in pension benefits from state and local pension plans.

The average pension benefit received was $1,654 per month or $19,843 per year. These modest benefits provide retired teachers, public safety personnel, and others who served the public during their working careers income to meet basic needs in retirement.

Between 1993 and 2012, 24.06% of Delaware's pension fund receipts came from employer contributions, 9.35% from employee contributions, and 66.59% from investment earnings. Earnings on investments and employee contributions—not taxpayer contributions—have historically made up the bulk of pension fund receipts.

Impact on Jobs and Incomes

Retiree expenditures stemming from state and local pension plan benefits supported 7,834 jobs in the state. The total income to state residents supported by pension expenditures was $381.1 million.

To put these employment impacts in perspective, in 2012 Delaware's unemployment rate was 7.1%. The fact that DB pension expenditures supported 7,834 jobs is significant, as it represents 1.8 percentage points in Delaware's labor force.

Economic Impact

State and local pension funds in Delaware and other states paid a total of $632.4 million in benefits to Delaware residents in 2012. Retirees' expenditures from these benefits supported a total of $1.3 billion in total economic output in the state, and $766.0 million in value added in the state.

$553.1 million in direct economic impacts were supported by retirees' initial expenditures. An additional $427.8 million in indirect impact resulted when these businesses purchased additional goods and services. $269.0 million in induced impacts occurred when workers employed by businesses as a result of the direct and indirect impacts made expenditures.
